Guiyang's Profile

Location Advantages:
As a gateway for the three provinces and one city (Yunnan, Sichuan, Guizhou, and Chongqing) in Southwest China down to the seaports along the south coast of China, Guiyang (Capitol of Guizhou Province) is a key node connecting Central, South and Southwest China, as well as a hub of land traffic and logistics.

Resources Advantages:
Situated in the center of the province, Guiyang is abundant in its mineral, biological and energy resources and with a huge potentiality.

Cost Advantages:
Guiyang is not only rich in natural resources, but owns relatively lower production factor costs as regards land, labor forces, etc. The prices of electricity and coal gas for civil and industrial purposes are only about half of those in East China, so as the average salaries of employees. Cost of land, water and other production factors are also lower than those in East China.
